

Moon Dragon

This is a brand-new story that I conceived in summer 2020. Who says nothing good happened that year?!

It came from a question on Eileen Mueller's Facebook page 'Riders of Fire' in which Eileen posed the scene: "A dragon breaks into your attic. What does it take?"

I responded with "The glowing staff that Granddad stashed the day before he disappeared."

I hadn't been trying to come up with a story idea, I just wanted to post an answer that fitted in with the style of the site and Eileen's related books. Nevertheless, the idea stuck in my mind and I decided that I could make a story out of that.

Thus was 'Moon Dragon' born!

I deliberately left it somewhat open-ended, so that if I decided to write further in that world I could. I have a few ideas of how things might proceed from where the story ended, but I have no plans at this time to write any more.
